About Face

| By Tony Labriola |

The apothecary counter at Saks Fifth Avenue is brimming with men's grooming products. There are moisturizers, shave creams, pre-shave creams, pomades and more moisturizers. What's right for you (or your man, for those whose guys aren't enlightened yet)? Good question. We've selected eight of the best new products worth trying right now. Dab on an eye cream, slick up with a pre-shave solution and slick back that hair with lightweight pomade. And when you approach the crowded counter, ask for these by name. Your skin will be glad you did. M

This non-greasy pomade not only dries soft to the touch, it adds hold and texture minus the stickiness. Paul Labrecque Daily Finish Matte Pomade, $28, at paullabrecque.com.

Made from 100 percent pure plant oils—including tamanu, which soothes and nourishes the skin—this shaving oil reduces redness and post-shave dryness. Ren Tamanu High Glide Shaving Oil, $28, at Bluemercury, New York.

The Sicilian lemon in this after-shave balm heals nicks, calms inflammation and has the intoxicating scent of limoncello. Protective Skin Balm for Men by Pro-Ferm, $80, at Space NK, New York.

This wonder cream stimulates collagen to combat wrinkles while olive, lavender and almond oils moisturize the delicate skin around your eyes. MD Skincare Hydra-Pure Firming Eye Cream, $90, at Sephora, New York.

In response to growing customer demand, Kiehl's introduces the Ultimate Razor sold exclusively at their flagship boutique in the East Village. Ultimate Razor, $85, at Kiehl's, New York.

Before you break out the razor, treat dry skin to this tea tree oil-infused solution that boasts hydrating oat and cooling cucumber extract. John Allan's Slick Water, $28, at John Allan's, New York.
