Make Star Legs

Want sexy stems for spring? A-list pros dish their tricks for drop-dead legs!

Contouring concealer

Apply water-resistant body makeup (it's more budge-proof than facial formulas) on trouble spots. Final touch? "Brush on a translucent powder to set foundation," says Mills.

4 TRIM AND TONE

"A tan always makes legs look longer, leaner and more toned," Baraf tells Us. "Skin appears sleeker to the eye because darker colors absorb light, creating a tauter appearance."

Bronzed beauty Apply tinted body lotion (it moisturizes as it colors) or self-tanner from thighs to feet, blending well around knees and ankles. Trimming trick? "Dusting the outer two inches from thighs to calves with a slightly darker bronzing powder creates the illusion of a leaner leg," suggests Mills.

5 GET A GLOW

For a subtle shimmer that enhances the leaner-leg look, go for sheen, not sparkle. "This is the key to getting a glow and not a showgirl shine!" says Baraf.

Supermodel sexy Apply a bit of shimmering cream or lotion, blending in circles, as Mills does to highlight Melissa Rycroft's limbs.

TREND WATCH

Purple Pouts

Drew Barrymore, Olivia Wilde and Whitney Port are painting their lips plum. "It's more daring than classic red, but just as dramatic, and everyone looks good in purple," says CoverGirl makeup pro Molly R. Stern (who's worked with Barrymore).

Stars' Straight Locks

Curly girls such as Debra Messing and Lindsay Price are suddenly sporting sleeker strands. "Straight hair looks shinier, and it has a fresh, youthful feel," says Messing's hair guru Ted Gibson. After blow-drying, use a flatiron to smooth small sections.
